Japanese Minister Hopes Fighting Will End Soon

VICTORY FOR JAP FORCES IS ASSUMED

Baron Believes Main Campaign Will End With Lunghai Battle

By TED FARAH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, May 19.—Japan unquestionably is facing grave difficulties in the war in the Orient, but China is facing more and greater difficulties, the new Japanese minister, Baron Shigenobu, said here last night.

Baron Tomii, just arrived from London where he was minister to the Japanese embassy, is spending a few days in the United States before assuming his post at Ottawa Monday.

"I sincerely hope and am convinced these hostilities will be over very soon," Baron said.

ASSUMES VICTORY

The Baron, who has had 22 years service with the Japanese diplomatic service in many parts of the world, spoke on Japan's difficulties here. He was asked if the recent stiffened Chinese resistance was still regarded in Tokyo as a grave threat.

He said he believed the "full drive" campaign by Japan will be over when the battle for possession of the Lunghai railway is settled. The Baron assumes Japan will be victorious.

"There will be guerrilla warfare after that but we certainly know how to cope with guerrilla warfare," he said. Japan will move ahead with its program for political stabilization and economic development. He does not believe there is any "deep-seated grudge" between the masses of people in China and Japan. Anti-Japanese propaganda, he said, has not been so effective as it was in the past. About 400,000 people in China, living largely in areas where communications are not modern.

WAS FIRST SECRETARY

When the Japanese legation was established in the Canadian capital in 1923, Baron Tomii served as first secretary and charge d'affaires.

He was born in 1894 and has been in the Japanese diplomatic service since 1914. He was one of the three men who codified Japanese civil law. When he died a few years ago, Baron Tomii inherited the title.

The thing will be settled in Ottawa by the Baron. In the old days, Ottawa had a crack professional hockey team, and the Baron said a "hockey game—hotly contested" is one of his favorite pastimes. But the Ottawa Senators are no more.

PILOT'S ATTEMPT KEEP CONTRACT CAUSE OF CRASH

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 19.—Thirty miles away from its starting point at Union terminal, but with a big airframe crashed into a mountain side Monday, exploded and burned to death its nine occupants including the pilot.

An attempt by the pilot to fulfill terms of an insurance underwriter's contract by keeping the plane in transport within sight, was ground at all times on its delivery flight from factory to St. Paul, Minn., came under scrutiny of federal investigators as the possible contributory factor in the disaster.

Some observers put 2,000 first-class machines as the strength of the German air force, but there is very little "dead wood" in this force. Production of planes could be swifly increased in time of war. Every factory is geared to the central "war power line."

Nowhere the German goes he escapes the plans for "let him." Gas masks designed for civilian use will for little more than 10 years. What used to be the Olympic village is now an officers' club. The German military center has been converted into a military hospital.

Fresh Effort Made to Settle Long-Standing Hindu-Moslem Wrangle

CALCUTTA, India, May 19.—A fresh effort is under way to settle the long-standing wrangle Hindu and Moslems over the communal rights. The principle in this move is Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, president of the All-India Muslim League.

Political observers and the Indian press are pessimistic over their chances of achieving substantial communal agreement.

"Moslems have made it clear that their sole demand is that they share the political rights, the share in the national life, the government and the administration of the country," said Jinnah. "They will fight for them till the last ditch and nothing will stop them from crushing it if they cannot get it."

Gandhi himself sounded a note of co-operation in a newspaper article. He said the Congress party claims to represent the whole of India, not merely those few who are the Congress party. "It should represent all those who are hostile to it and who would crush it if they could," he said.

"They will make good that claim shall we be in a position to displace the British government and function as an independent nation."

Do It Right

It will cost, according to advance estimates, $350,000 to build the re-located section of Highway No. 1 from Red Deer to Crossfield, 62 and one-half miles. The completed cost may be more than the estimates. If it falls within these figures the cost per mile will be approximately $5,500.

Highway building is an expensive business in any country, and particularly so in a country where gravel pits are scarce and soils turn to mud at every good shower.

But experience has shown, nowhere more clearly than on this highway, that it pays to make a permanent job, whatever the cost. First to last that highway has cost the people of the province enough to have built a permanent all-weather road from end to end—and they haven't got the road and won't have until more millions are spent on it.

It is to be hoped the reconstruction work is being planned and done with durability in mind rather than cheapness. If there is a limit to the amount of really permanent highway that can be built, we can't afford to build and rebuild any more of the other kind.

The Hoppers Again

The provincial department of agriculture has issued the annual declaration of war on the grasshopper, and distributing poisoned bait will be a summer chore for farmers over a somewhat wider range than in previous seasons.

A map prepared by the Dominion entomologists at Lethbridge shows the northwest corner of the infested area, to be a few miles north of Ryley. The northern boundary of the area runs east and somewhat southerly to the Saskatchewan border. The western boundary runs south from Ryley to Stettler, curves west to cross the C. and E. railway north of Olds, and turns south a few miles west of the northwest corner of the infested area, to the international boundary along the foot-hills.

With the exception of a large block north of Medicine Hat and another patch in the extreme south-east corner of the province, this whole area is more or less "seeded" with hopper eggs. Due to hatch any day and release a consuming horde, not all heavily infested, but there are large districts marked "severe" and "very severe". The war area thus takes in more than half the cultivated land in the province.

Instructions are being sent out to farmers, along with supplies of the needed poison, and warnings that they are required by law to fight the pest where and where they are told to. Also are comforting bits of information; "Hoppers feed only while the temperature is between 65 and 90 degrees in the shade." They won't do much feeding if the weather continues to be what it has been.

Just A "Bluff"?

At Medicine Hat, Saskatchewan, Premier Aberhart told a questioner Hon. C. Dunning had "better be careful or I'll call his bluff some day and show him how to run a bank."

This isn't a promise. It isn't a prediction. It is only an assertion of what might happen in certain circumstances. It might even be a "bluff". Since the Premier says Mr. Dunning was bluffing when he offered to support an application for a charter for an Alberta provincial bank, nothing could be easier than to put the matter to the test. All that need be done is apply for a charter. If Mr. Dunning failed to support the application the accusation would be proved.

No such application has been made. No intimation has been given that it will be made. Isn't it a bit discourteous to say a man was bluffing without giving him an opportunity to show whether he was bluffing or not? The Premier would not think it fair if someone said he was bluffing at Medicine Hat.

What Mr. Dunning did was invite the Government of Alberta to apply to parliament for a charter, and promise to support the application. The Government decided it did not want a charter. All well and good. But why impute insincerity to Mr. Dunning because the Government doesn't want to run a bank?

Why this attitude of petulance because the Minister of Finance offered to help set up the machinery to try out Major Douglas's theory of currency? Alas, it seems Mr. Dunning offended the Premier in making the suggestion. Why was that offensive?

The School Question

The taxpayers' association is petitioning the public school board to submit a by-law asking authority from the burgesses to borrow the $300,000 the board requires to build two new schools. Not that the association is opposed to the expenditure, but because it is opposed to capital expenditure being made without positive consent of the property-owners. Passive assent is not deemed good enough.

The principle is a sound one where large expenditures are involved, though it becomes ridiculous when the city could get to the point of the majority and expense to get permission to buy some police equipment which could be bought out of current revenue. But, frankly, how much less ridiculous is the usual vote on a money bill taken when there is no maverick or ultra-conservative to draw voters to the polls?

What commonly happens is that only a small minority of the burgesses take the trouble to vote, and the count does not give any accurate representation of their opinion in the aggregate. Whichever way the majority of the minority vote, is assumed to be the verdict from the burgesses as a body. The non-voting majority are passive assenters, as is the case where no vote is called for.

About the only time a money bill draws a respectable expression of burgess opinion is when it is held at the time of the municipal elections. There should be a departure from this rule when the school bill is submitted, for two reasons. The schools are needed; and it is proposed to pay for them only once, by taxing them in five years. For both reasons the burgesses should turn out and give the by-law a good majority.

Editorial Notes

Just by way of keeping things in balance, an Alberta exponent of C.C.F. doctrine is going into Saskatchewan to tell the voters about "Social Credit" and what it has done to Alberta." It is a subject of large possibilities.

The Ottawa Journal says somebody on its staff has read the Turgon report on grain-marketing "from river to river," and the inquiry Albertan counters with a claim that all its staffmen read every act passed "and not passed" at the last session of the Alberta legislature, amendments included. Suitable commiseration is hereby extended.

Mr. Knode comes to Alberta highly recommended by the United States bureau of mines. Mr. Dingman knows Turner Valley as few men do. Mr. Cottle is familiar with the statistical background of every oil company in the province. They should be able to find out how to stop the wasting of oil, if there is any way to stop it.

Current Comment

The Tipping Tilt

A demonstration of what a sizeable institution the tipping habit has become is often seen in the case of William Ellis, New York City's "Hot Check King." Mr. Ellis has made a fortune through control of the hot-check concessions in the nation's largest city. He was able recently to pay $1500 a month to maintain his place, and $200,000 of the old man was in cash—cash from the nickels, dimes and quarters with which New Yorkers daily ransom their belongings from the checkroom girls—Minneapolis Tribune.

A Warning

Since the present state of events in Canada... is very largely due to the dominating influence of business in Canadian politics, something more inspiring is due from business leaders of opinion. The people of Canada are law-abiding, loyal and steady in adversity, but the people in Germany, Italy and some other countries, they can only be pushed so far in the direction of drastic economy, deflation and belt-tightening. Political democracy cannot survive indefinitely under such terms of bare existence in Canada.—Ottawa Citizen.

Sultan of Muscat

The Sultan of Muscat spent a busy day on Monday. He was at Windsor Castle in the morning and at Westminster Abbey in the afternoon, and went on to see the Great Hall at Westminster and the Palace of Parliament. The Dean of Westminster and Canon Barry, who received the Sultan and his attendants at Westminster, stated that the Sultan had on the tour arranged for all distinguished guests the one taken by Queen Mary and the first Princess a few days ago, taking him first to the grave of the Unknown Soldier and then showing him where the King had been crowned. Scores of visitors watched with great interest the Sultan's visit to the royal tomb. The Sultan made little comment during his tour in which English people indeed are rather bewildered with the centuries, but he seemed most impressed by the splendour of the tomb, with its glory of banners. Finally he was taken to Peter's Corner, not to look at Shakespeare's tomb, but to marvel at the longevity of "Old Peter," who died at the age of 132.—Manchester Guardian.

The Poor Litigant

The proposal of Victoria lawyers to consider a plan to offer legal aid free to those who are unable to afford it is a gesture of good citizenship. Many people have forfeited their rights to the courts in civil actions because of the inevitable bill for legal costs. To the public generally the ways of the courts are quite mysterious. Friendly officials, sympathetic and understanding magistrates and judges, may on occasion show an inclination to help an uninitiated plaintiff, but such inclination is unable to secure counsel to present his case, but the legal atmosphere is still more or less bewildering.

The rule which limits such a litigant to confine himself to questions to a witness, without the aid of the attorney, is a rule which is not feeling of resentment in the minds of people who appear to conduct their own cases. The ordinary citizen, in the court for the first time, is naturally handicapped by the limitation imposed. Only the expert in cross-examination can lightly postpone regret to an apparent refusal to make capital out of it.

This is only one instance of the mystery, to the layman, of court procedure. Others are far more perplexing. The plaintiff or defendant who has to pay a lawyer to conduct an enormous advantage. Therefore, unless legal aid is available to the poor man, his presentation—his case—will be ended by the lawyer's "persuasive" intelligence—may suffer, no matter how conclusive may be the evidence in his case. However, the reader of this paper, no matter how uninitiated, is a good source of information. His conclusions, and his final judgment, are based on all the material presented to him for consideration.—Victoria Daily Times.

Opinions on the Air

It is not yet quite clear what ultimate significance will be attached to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's recent remarks in his criticism of the British Government's foreign policy over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. His statement led to the belief that the Government would issue orders to the Board of Governors of the commission covering the point in question. The following day, Hon. C. Dunning, minister of the interior, stated under which the commission operates, said that no orders could or would be issued.

However, the incident would provoke a great deal of discussion throughout the country because two important considerations are involved in the Prime Minister's statement. In the first place, there is the question of freedom of discussion on the C.B.C. Secondly, there is the question of the extent to which the Board of Governors are required to have the will of the Government on discussion of controversial questions. Both are fundamental questions of democracy.

It is difficult to see how Canadians are to be prevented from interesting themselves in the foreign policy of the United Kingdom, or for that matter, of any other Government. The present state of interdependence between nations makes any country's foreign policy a matter of public interest to all nations. It is not surprising, therefore, that if any country follows a policy which promotes war or peace, then the results of that policy will be felt by all nations. The struggle in Spain and in China affect economic and political interests in Canada. Trouble between any two nations may affect the peace of the world, and hence the peace of Canada. It is not surprising, therefore, that the people of this country have an undeniable interest in the direction of the foreign policy of any large country.

Granting that this interest exists, then it becomes the duty of the commentator, either in the press or over the radio, to explain the situation as he sees it. Only in this way can Canadian opinion be raised above the level of prejudice and ignorance. It is not surprising, therefore, that the editor of any other Government, it may be unfortunate, but it would appear, nevertheless, an inevitable incident to the

DR. FRANK MCGOW

From the point of view of the patient the understanding thing about catarrh of the stomach is the large amount of mucus which is thrown off. In a chronic case, there may be so much mucus in the stomach early in the morning that the patient is forced to go through a coughing spell in order to raise the excess mucus and to expel it by mouth.

Sometimes the patient believes he has a catarrhal discharge from the bronchial tubes when he actually has stomach catarrh, as it is easy to make the mistake of thinking the mucus is being brought up through the windpipe when it is actually coming by way of the gullet or esophagus.

A gastric catarrh the mucous membrane which lines the stomach becomes engorged and congested. The mucus-secreting cells begin to secrete an excessive amount of mucus and at the same time there is a disturbance of the gastric juice also thrown out by the stomach walls. Because of the latter disturbance, the digestive power is reduced and there is a partial loss of the ability to digest food.

Stomach catarrh may occur in either the acute or chronic form. The acute form is commonly referred to as an attack of indigestion and generally follows the taking of an unwise meal.

The patient complains of such symptoms as lack of appetite, a burning feeling in the stomach, headache, coating of the tongue, weakness and mental depression. Usually he recovers within a few hours to a few days. The recovery period may be shortened by taking nothing but bland food, and by the use of a cathartic to clear the stomach region. The most important thing is to stay away from food until all distress subsides in order to give the stomach a rest.

In a chronic case of gastric catarrh the patient does not present such dramatic symptoms. At first the patient notices that the digestive power is gradually becoming weaker. He notices that he is no longer able to eat without distress and he begins to feel that he is not getting his food properly. As the condition progresses, more definite symptoms appear. The patient feels that his appetite is poor, there is a sense of discomfort after meals, a slow loss in weight, dulness of the complexion, and irritability. Also, certain changes are taking place in the blood and there is less acid being secreted, together with less pepsin. These changes are attended by a marked increase in the mucus secretion.

Persistent errors in diet are the most common cause of stomach catarrh. The only sensible method of treatment is to eat a plain diet and the patient must be willing to diet for several weeks. It is usually desirable to reduce the quantity of food and smaller meals should therefore be taken. The patient should avoid fried foods and also foods containing a great deal of fat, such as pork. When starches are eaten, they should be well cooked and an effort made to use less starch for a time.

Excessive fluid with meals must be avoided and the patient should not let his water-drinking be between meals rather than with meals. Rich, greasy, heavy meats, sweet foods, pancakes and puddings must be left out of the diet. The cause the patient has been over-indulging in alcohol, he should be advised to cut down. The diet method offers the best hope of cure, and as the patient has become sick by water, the wrong food his best course of action is to learn how to use the right food at the right time and in the right amount.

Questions and Answers

QUESTION—Theresa C. asks: "Is it dangerous to eat the dried prunes just as they come from the package, without first cooking them?"

ANSWER—No. Probably you cook prunes partly because we are accustomed to doing it and partly because it makes them softer and more plump. However, the dried fruit is wholesome without being cooked.

QUESTION—Mrs. Theresa P. asks: "In using the vacuum cleaner, should the dust be thrown away, should the oil be thrown away and the bonny parts be discarded?"

ANSWER—The soft-clothed bonns in canned salad dressings are a good source of calcium, and the oil contains vitamin D in appreciable amounts. Because of these facts, the United States Bureau of Fisheries is suggesting that consumers use both the oil and bones of canned salmon.

QUESTION—Nona L. inquires: "Do you have the directions for making a good mother used to make it, recommending it be eaten as she thought it helped the kidneys?"

ANSWER—In making parley tea, one bunch of parley is thoroughly washed, then 1 quart of water is added. This is brought to a boil and allowed to simmer gently for 10 minutes. Strain and use about 8 ounces at any one time. It is believed that parley has a beneficial effect when the urinary tract is inflamed, and that its use has the directions for making it in this way, you will find the liquid elimination when it is excessively acid.

Novelty in Court

"You are the first jury in a British Dominion, as far as I know, who have had the honor of being shown the jury box to view a picture of the working of a saw in a timber mill. The case was a claim for damages amounting to $200 arising from an accident in which a man was injured by the thrusting of a saw right hand amputated by a circular saw. A full-sized model of the saw occupied a prominent place in the floor of the court. This model was prepared by the defence, as was a motion picture of the saw. The picture, which was shown for the jury to view, gave a detailed description of the operation of the saw and the work done by the man attending it.—New Zealand Press Union.

Right on Schedule
Editor, Bulletin: It is with considerable interest that I have read the correspondence in your columns on the subject of the proposed claims that the word schedule should be schedule or schedule.

Now, while I desire to enter the list, I feel I can only do so with a risk of arousing some international feeling.

First I must ask: Are we dealing with the English language? All will decide in the affirmative.

Next: Where did the English language originate? Must we ask again?

Further: Shall we accept the language of the cultured, or of the illiterate? There can be no question of this.

It follows then, that the recognized English dictionary must show the word as it is used in the English language to America. Can it be denied when I state the English language as spoken by the American people here is a great deal broader, more expressive, and often the illiterate. His language was the spoken language of the American people. Will not the same explanation be given for the word schedule? And, Sir, it is my claim—that English as spoken by the American people cannot be held to be the correct explanation of the word schedule.

This I claim must be the deciding factor when the question arises: Shall we use schedule or scheduled? It is not a question of the word, but of the word as it is used in the English language. It is not a question of the word, but of the word as it is used in the English language. It is not a question of the word, but of the word as it is used in the English language.

THE cotton trade is again in the grip of depression. A number of mills in Louisiana took advantage of the break in the market for ten days instead of the customary three. Moreover, many of these mills are now closed, and the fact that some claim whatever to be in the market, and the others certainly are not, is a great deal of trouble.

The little improvement is expected in consequence of the trade agreement between the United States and the United Kingdom, which undertakes to import more British goods. A large proportion of these will be textiles.

On the other hand Egypt has raised the import duties on British goods, and this is a disadvantage. The government is making a great deal of money on the question at Cairo.

These variations can only be explained by the fact that the first emigrants, while destined to be the fathers of a wonderful nation, were also emigrants, and were not the fathers of a wonderful nation.

LONDON, May 19.—The government has accepted the report of a defence co-ordination ministry sub-committee that Great Britain must for the time being continue to look overseas for its petroleum supplies. It was revealed further that legislation would be presented containing provision for a 12-year preferential tariff of eight pence a gallon in favor of oils for Diesel motors produced in Great Britain and made in the House of Commons last night.

Wife Feared Husband Would Never Work Again

When her husband had been at home 20 weeks with rheumatism in his back, this woman began to think he would never work again. At last, she said to him: "Let's try Kruschen," and the change was made. He was back to work, thanks to Kruschen. The change it made is like a miracle. "Mrs. J. is her mother."

"My husband is subject to rheumatism and suffered terribly with his back. Some time ago, I had him in the house 20 weeks with it. I really didn't think he would ever work again. We tried all the different kinds of pills you could mention, but none of them did him any good. Then I said, 'Let's try Kruschen.' Since then, we have proved Kruschen's salts to be worth its weight in gold. We're back to work again, thanks to Kruschen. The change it made is like a miracle."—Mrs. J. is her mother.

Two of the effects in Kruschen are the most effective solvents of uric acid crystals known to science. They swiftly clear the sharp edges of the painful crystals and convert them into a harmless solution, which is then expelled through the natural channels.

OILMEN ARE ALL PLEASED WITH BOARD

Conservation Officials Hold Conference With Producers Association

CALGARY, May 19.—Alberta's newly appointed gas conservation board last night plunged into their work by spending nearly two hours with a committee of the Alberta Petroleum Producers' Association discussing the Oil and Gas Conservation Act which they will administer and to which the producers have already objected. The objections that the producers had was apparently done away with during the meeting. Officials of the producers said they were "quite satisfied" with the personnel of the board.

Seven weeks ago they objected to the act defining the personnel of the board as men who would have no interest in Turner Valley. They said, W. F. Knode, Texas conservation expert, chairman, C. W. Dingman, former head of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Division of the Provincial Department of Lands and Mines, and F. C. Catlett, former secretary of the board of public utilities were competent, well qualified and would deal fairly with all concerned.

Hon. N. L. Turner, provincial minister of lands and mines, who also attended the meeting, said the government was "glad to have the program that had been made toward halting Turner Valley's large gas wastage."

Rebuilding Herds

OTTAWA, May 19.—More thoroughbred horses were being put back in the hands of the Saskatchewan in any other province to assist in rebuilding the herds scattered by drought and lack of feed, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, agriculture minister, said at the House of Commons Wednesday. The department was criticized for the way in which dairy cattle were removed from the drought areas last fall.

Police Hunt

Needler in Eastern City

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 19.—City police Wednesday investigated the second report within a week that a woman had been stabbed with a needle. The second case occurred Monday when a 20-year-old store employee said she felt a job in the hip when a man and woman brushed past her. She suffered no ill effects. A week ago a young St. Catharines woman said she was jabbed with a hypodermic needle.

Reich Warned

Better Bread Health Need

WIESBADEN, Germany, May 19.—German physicians Wednesday warned the government it would have to provide the people with better bread, fruit, and fresh vegetables. More or less synthetic bread now used has been severely criticized by doctors as not conducive to good health.

Well-Drilling Rig Sink Hole 7 Miles

Oil Bore As Far Down AS 20 MILES

Stronger Steels Must Be Perfect for Apparatus to Reach Limit

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE Associated Press Science Editor

TELESA, Okla., May 19.—Seven miles deep in the earth, a hole is being drilled today at the International Petroleum Exposition, Tulsa, Okla., by a team of more than 150 men as far down as 20 miles.

In the world there is today no pump which can draw oil from a well 15,000 to the deep oil of one of these wells about flowing under its own pressure. It costs nearly $500,000 at present to drill a mile farther than two miles.

20 MILES DOWN

There may be oil pools down to 20 miles below the surface. This estimate is made by geologists from studies of the downward slant of the oil in the world's deepest wells.

Before this new mile limit of the big "draw works" exhibited here can be reached, the steel strings of the stronger pipe and longer cables. Drilling pipe hangs from the top of the well. Steel strings would break of their own weight long before seven miles.

But steel available today can go down nearly four miles.

The "draw works" will drill a hole in a system of three shafts, each nearly a foot deep in the ground. The first shaft runs a steel cable carrying the weight of the strings of pipe. Steel strings would break of their own weight long before seven miles.

The name "draw works" comes from the fact that the pump is pulled up by a rope. The pump is pulled up by a rope. The pump is pulled up by a rope.

Carbon dioxide is present on Ammonia on Jupiter, and oxygen on Mars, according to spectroscopic tests made by Prof. W. M. Slipher.

ARROWS, BELMONT'S

Senior Teams Anxiously Await Renfrew Park Start

PROVIDING old man weather calls off his tears a few hours before game time, Laurel Harvey's Belmonts and Dave Fenton's Arrow Buses will clash in their first start in the Senior Amateur Baseball League at Renfrew Park tonight, starting at 6:15 p.m. The league was officially opened on Tuesday when the Cardinals defeated the Columbus Club.

Both teams are anxiously chaffing at the bit awaiting their start in the league. Both have had eight or so weeks of steady training and have shaped up well.

HARD HITTERS

Harvey has assembled a hard-hitting and fast-fielding squad. All that was lacking was pitching strength but that strength was found this past week as a likely replacement for his home town Belmont contact. Harvey also secured Lefty Fins, a pitcher who should win several games during the season by very means.

Tonight Detu Perry, of Melburg, Sask., will start the twinning duties for the Belmonts. He's a right-hander and has looked good in practice sessions. Harvey will be doubling behind the plate with Phil Horne, a veteran campaigner here will be on first base. Good fielding strength and hitting power will guard the second base as Leroy Goldsworthy takes his place with Eric Doligan at shortstop and Johnny Lewis at third base. Doligan, too, has proven himself on the local diamond.

STRONG OUTFIELD

Harvey has his outfield duties well taken care of with Norman McIntyre at left field and Wally Wagner at center. In the right garden will be Red Ruby. Utility power in Don Carlson and Jimmy Burke is expected. Strong. Other platters will be Herman Lohick, the Spruce Grove agrarian and Peter Turner.

Back Raton is the likely starter for the Arrows. Buck has played for several years around these parts and with some sturdy support at the bat he is a hard finger to beat.

There is plenty of power in the Arrows. It is a young squad with plenty of hustle and while the odd error is bound to creep into the play in their first game a fair brand of senior baseball is in order.

John "Lefty" Dorey will be officiating, calling the balls and strikes.

"7up" Manufacturers Celebrate 25th Anniversary

Dominion Bottling Works Have Highly Mechanized Plant

Pioneer Edmonton Soft Drink Firm Still Occupies Original Premises Located 10172 94 Street

Growing steadily, with the community, from a few hand-operated machines, to a highly mechanized plant, and an organization stretching throughout central and northern Alberta, the Dominion Bottling Works, Ltd., makers of "7up", commemorate their 25th anniversary this week.

Still occupying the original premises, with additions made from time to time to accommodate increased business, the bottling works located at 10172 94 street, is a life of industry, complete and independent unit in itself, supplying progress management and good service to the public.

One of the most interesting features of the plant of the Dominion Bottling Works is an insignificant piece of apparatus standing off in one corner of the bottling room, the original bottler, now decommissioned. It stands about four feet high, a foot and a half broad at the base, coming up in a conical shape, and a foot pedal at the bottom.

VAST CONTRAST
Contrasting the new big stainless steel machines, this little piece of apparatus at one time, bottled every drink that went out through the warehouse door.

Its operation was a slow one. First a crown was fitted, by hand, in the cupping part of the machine. Then a single bottle was placed on a tray that was raised by the foot pedal. The bottle, was then filled with a small portion of syrup, and the balance with carbonated water. As the operator pushed the pedal down, the carbonated water, the bottle was raised still higher, and the crown was firmly fastened on.

Cleaning and sterilizing bottles was just as tedious a job.

METHOD IN PRE-WAR DAYS
That is how it was done in pre-war days, but the method is neither fast enough or safe enough to fit modern demands.

The twentieth century demand for speed and cleanliness is answered in the recently installed stainless steel and glass lined equipment required in the production of "7up" and its family of 22 associated drinks, made by Dominion Bottling Works, Ltd.

INTERESTING STORY
The story of how a bottle of "7up" is made, and what it has to go through, before it reaches the consumer of the confectioner or grocer, is an interesting one.

Starting with the mixing room. It is absorbing to see how the chemist combines water, sugar, and concentrated flavoring juices in a group, that later becomes the heart of the drink.

Realizing that the enjoyment of the drink lies in its syrup, the management of the Dominion Bottling Works have spent considerable time and money in developing their own formulae. Consistency is maintained by use of precision equipment. The chief chemist, Dr. R. Margolis, a former graduate of the University of Alberta, is in charge of this department.

RYONE FILTER
City water enters at one end of the room, and passes through a fine filter for purification.

After being purified, the water passes into a series of large glass-lined crack vats, and a mixing machine into which pure cane sugar is added to form the base of the syrup. The mixing machine is equipped with stainless steel blades, and is class lined, to insure the safety of the drink.

SYRUP FILTERED
From the mixing machine, the syrup is filtered through thick filter pads, suspended on a silver mesh strainer, and passes on to another large jar where it is mixed with the flavoring juices.

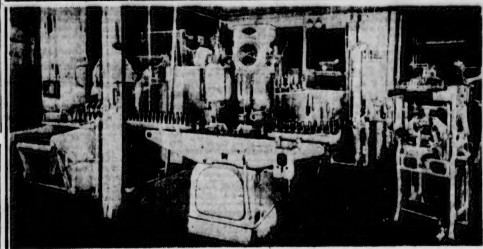

These concentrated juices are added according to a special formula, being gauged by graduated tubing running the length of the vat. After being thoroughly mixed, syrup is pronounced ready for preparation of the bottled drink, and is discharged gradually to the bottling machine through stainless steel piping.

Before the bottles reach the bottling machine, they go through a complicated process of being cleaned and sterilized. They are placed in a washer, that performs several operations before releasing the bottles. They go through a bath of caustic soda, then through a series of rinses and scrubbing.

REVOLVING BRUSHES
The rinses and scrubbing consist of revolving and oscillating brushes that scour the bottle thoroughly on the outside, then on the inside, then the bottle is rinsed again. After being sterilized, the bottles pass out of the machine, unobscured by hand, going automatically into an endless belt, carrying them a short distance to the bottling machine.

Another important machine in the bottling room is the Carbonator. This is the machine that makes the carbonated water for the drink. Its function is to mix water and carbon dioxide gas by a complicated technical process, and operates automatically. It is fed filtered water and carbon dioxide gas.

How "7Up" Drink Reaches You

A picture of a corner of the bottling room of the Dominion Bottling Works, makers of "7up", showing the bottle washer at the extreme left feeding sterilized bottles to an endless chain conveyor which carries them to the bottling machine in the center.

After leaving the bottling machine, the bottles are inspected, and passed on to the labeling machine in the extreme right. Between the bottling machine and the labeling machine can be seen the Carbonator, which produces carbonated water from purified water and carbon dioxide gas.

Makers Of "7up" Have Expanded As City Progressed

Dominion Bottling Works, Founded in 1913, Has Clung to Belief Edmonton Destined to Be Industry Centre

The Dominion Bottling Works, which was founded in 1913, has clung tenaciously to the belief that Edmonton is destined to be one of the most important centres of industry and distribution in the west. For a quarter of a century the pioneering bottling firm has fostered a steady expansion, along with the city, and is even more hopeful of the city's future now, than ever before.

Starting operations with a small staff, and an almost completely hand-operated establishment in pre-war days, step by step it has expanded. The first move towards mechanization came in the form of the company's first truck, which appeared in 1917, when the firm purchased a truck, as part of their program to replace horse-and-draw delivery.

Hand-operated equipment was then replaced by power machines, despite the reverse effect of the economic life, as an aftermath of the Great War. Demand for quality products continued to increase with each year, until in 1935, the firm was forced to install the most recent type of machines designed to handle their business.

GREAT POPULARITY
The prime factor in the augmented capacity was chiefly attributed to the popularity of the new beverage they introduced to the public at that time, "7up". The popularity of the drink was far greater than ever anticipated, and until today it still retains its pre-eminence on the part of many thousands of people in central and northern Alberta.

The installations in 1935 included a new bottling machine, a new carbonator, and labeler. These machines, made largely of stainless steel, to insure complete protection of the beverage, will handle 3,000 bottles an hour. At the time of their installation, they were the latest machines of their type in the city.

These machines are built to handle three types of bottles, the standard 7 oz. bottle, the pint bottle, and the family size or large bottle. When changing the types of bottles to be filled it is necessary to shut down the machines, to effect adjustments.

Every product going into the production of the 22 beverages of the dominion bottling works, is made in Alberta. Bottles, packing boxes, sugar, tops, carbon dioxide gas, the main essentials are all made in Alberta. Bottles are obtained from Medicine Hat, packing boxes from Edmonton, sugar, tops, and gas obtained in the city also.

The firm has over 20 employees on its payroll, and is an independent Edmonton firm of a quarter of a century's standing.

HER OF PLANT
Without dispute, the bottling machine is the hub of the entire plant, for all processes work towards it, or from it. It serves a triple purpose: those of injecting the syrup, carbonated water, and crowning the bottle.

As the sterilized bottles go to the machine from the endless chain, they are fed automatically to the bottling machine, which is uncrowded by human hand. In the first process of the machine, a portion of syrup is released into the bottle.

Then the bottles travel in a big circle, while the carbonated water is being slowly added to the pre-measured amount. By the time they have completed the big circle they are ready for crowning, which again is automatic.

INSPECTED CONSTANTLY
Leaving the bottling machine, they pass onto the inspection table, where two men constantly inspect each bottle to hold before a strong light before being passed on to be labeled. This is the first time a human hand touches the bottles after being placed in the bottle washer.

The Carbonator and the bottling machine are both finished in stainless steel to insure against any contamination of the beverage.

After the bottles are labeled, they are placed in packing cases and dispatched to the various sections of the warehouse.

Another part of the plant that proves very interesting is the section where crows for the 22 different beverages are kept. Large drawers, from the floor to the ceiling, are filled with crows, to be used when required. Any boy would be thrilled to be able to play around in that corner of the warehouse.

As a result of the allotments the new bonds will be outstanding in the following amounts: $10,000,000, two per cent, $10,000,000, 30 years, three per cent, bonds, $20,000,000.

The offer of conversion to holders of the outstanding two per cent bonds who mature Oct. 15, 1938, was "very successful," the minister announced. Of the total of $80,000,000 of such maturing bonds $80,000,000 were converted into one of the other of the two maturities of the new issue.

Earl Egmont May Conclude To Quit Alberta

CALGARY, May 18.—Earl of Egmont, Alberta-born rancher, who with his Countess and young son, was on route to England last night may take up permanent residence at the ancestral estate, Avon Castle, Bigwood, Wiltshire, England.

It was understood in Calgary that the Earl and Countess, making their first trip overseas, may survey the possibility of educating their son, Viscount Thynne, at the Royal School, Perceval, in British school.

Half A City Changes Ownership In Large Real Estate Transfer

CARDIFF, Wales, May 18.—Practically half a city changed hands Tuesday when the immensely wealthy Marquess of Bute sold part of the world port of 200,000 population for a price understood to be about £25,000,000 ($100,000,000).

The real estate deal was believed to be the largest ever recorded in Great Britain.

The sale included residential suburbs, shopping centres and the busy docks from which South Wales exports most of its coal.

The Bute is a famous Scottish family who long have owned large estates in Wales. The Marquess retained his two historic residences here, the famed Cardiff castle in the centre of the city, where he has entertained 1,000 guests party guests with race- and Cardiff castle, a few miles outside the city.

The Marquess himself—a descendant of one of the 10 sons of the 14th century King Robert II of Scotland—holds three castles, three villages, four manors and 30 baronies. He owns a total of about 17,000 acres.

He is believed to have purchased the castle as Private John Cardigan-Stuart during the Great War and received the usual two millions and ninepence (88 cents) a day.

The Shute family was developed by the union of three different species of flowers from Europe, America and Japan.

JUDGMENT IN ACTS ATTACK IS RESERVED

Frawley Argues No Demands Are Made on Plaintiffs

CALGARY, May 18.—Judgment in the action of the Motor Car Supply Company Limited against the Social Credit Act, Calgary, was reserved. The court declared that the Social Credit Act was ultra vires, was not a valid law, and that the Motor Car Supply Company Limited was entitled to a declaration that the Social Credit Act was invalid and that subsequent orders made under the act were null and void.

It was indicated it would be at least a month before judgment is rendered.

The Motor Car Supply Company, which failed to take a license under the License Act, was sued by the Social Credit Act, which was passed by the Social Credit government.

The company is not affected or hurt by the Social Credit Act legislation, he said.

The act, he added, had been passed by the Social Credit government in 1937. The same applied to the Licensing Act of 1936, he said. It had been repealed.

No demands made. Under the Trade Act of 1937, no demands had been made on the company under that act and it could not therefore have sufficient interest to give the company the right to ask for a declaration.

The company, through its counsel, Mr. Nolan, had charged the demands had been made for it to take out a license under the licensing act.

NO DEMANDS MADE. Under the Trade Act of 1937, no demands had been made on the company under that act and it could not therefore have sufficient interest to give the company the right to ask for a declaration.

TRUCK-TRAILER BAN IS NOW ON CALGARY TRAIL

CALGARY, May 18.—Following days of snoring trucks, a ban on truck and trailer traffic on the main thoroughfare of the city, between the city limits and the city limits, was put into effect at 7:30 this morning.

F. J. Graham, provincial district officer, said the ban would probably be in effect for three or four days until the trucks could be moved out of the city.

It was believed resident engineers in other sections of the province would also place bans on trucks on roads in their own districts.

Local shipping companies present all available trucks in service to carry Edmonton shipments to the city. The ban became effective this morning. If they succeeded in getting through they would return to Calgary empty and avoid lifting of the ban.

The Marquess of Bute, who long have owned large estates in Wales, retained his two historic residences here, the famed Cardiff castle in the centre of the city, where he has entertained 1,000 guests party guests with race- and Cardiff castle, a few miles outside the city.

The Marquess himself—a descendant of one of the 10 sons of the 14th century King Robert II of Scotland—holds three castles, three villages, four manors and 30 baronies. He owns a total of about 17,000 acres.

He is believed to have purchased the castle as Private John Cardigan-Stuart during the Great War and received the usual two millions and ninepence (88 cents) a day.

The Shute family was developed by the union of three different species of flowers from Europe, America and Japan.

CALGARY, May 18.—Following days of snoring trucks, a ban on truck and trailer traffic on the main thoroughfare of the city, between the city limits and the city limits, was put into effect at 7:30 this morning.
